

The Credit River correspondent in the Shakopee Argus says that two bright boys with a mechanical turn of mind are at work on a "flirtation recorder machine," to be set along the H. & D. tracks, which are used for a lovers' lane. In addition to recording kisses, the machine puts down in black and white a great variety of vows and declarations, such as "I love you." "I would die for you." "I cannot live without you." "I think of you every waking minute and dream of you the livelong night." "Life would be a desert without you." And all that kind of stuff, and it rings a bell when it gets too thick. If they ever get that machine working in Credit River, "Owntest Own" will have to use the sign language.

Recording Device Jun 3 1903

Clipped By:

cdkostik

Sun, Jun 28, 2020